Sports Day started with a warm-up session led by the school's Mandarin teaching team, where the students were dancing to the beat of an up tempo song. By then, the children were all geared up to begin their conquest of the various relay races where they were required to hop on hula hoops, run past obstacles, balance balls, fill up bottles in the quickest time, and scoop and balance marbles.

Parents and teachers were also spending their time drenched in sweat as they raced across the track in the fastest time with individual races and pairings. There was also the old favourite segment of tug-o-war where they were pitted against each other in the fight for victory. Winners were all around as the children successfully completed their races and were each awarded the Chiltern House Sports Day 2014 medals.

Chiltern House Preschool's Centre Director, Wang Pau Lee, was full of praises for the sportsmanship exhibited by all the preschoolers – from the three-year-old Nursery Ones to the six-year-old Kindergarten Twos. "This is our fifth Sports Day and it's also our best so far! It was such a delight and an adrenaline-pumping experience watching the children participate in all segments with such zest. They overcame their struggles, and motivated themselves to finish the races in the midst of the cheers from the crowd. That, in itself, is an achievement for such a tender age!"

She added, "The annual sports day is organized to encourage our young children to develop a challenging spirit, with the fitness to achieve their goals through the support rendered by their teachers and parents. The Chiltern House Preschool Sports Day will remain an essential element of the school's programme, and it is the school's vision to develop their students according to their potential. "Who knows? We may even be able to bring out the hidden sports talent in some of them!" she quips.

Sports Day 2014 concluded successfully by mid-day as the children adjourned to have their packed lunch. It was a day to remember – adorned by the splendid display of team spirit by the young children and the camaraderie forged between them and their teachers.
